

USE OF A COLLECTION, ANTIQUES, OR ART

01

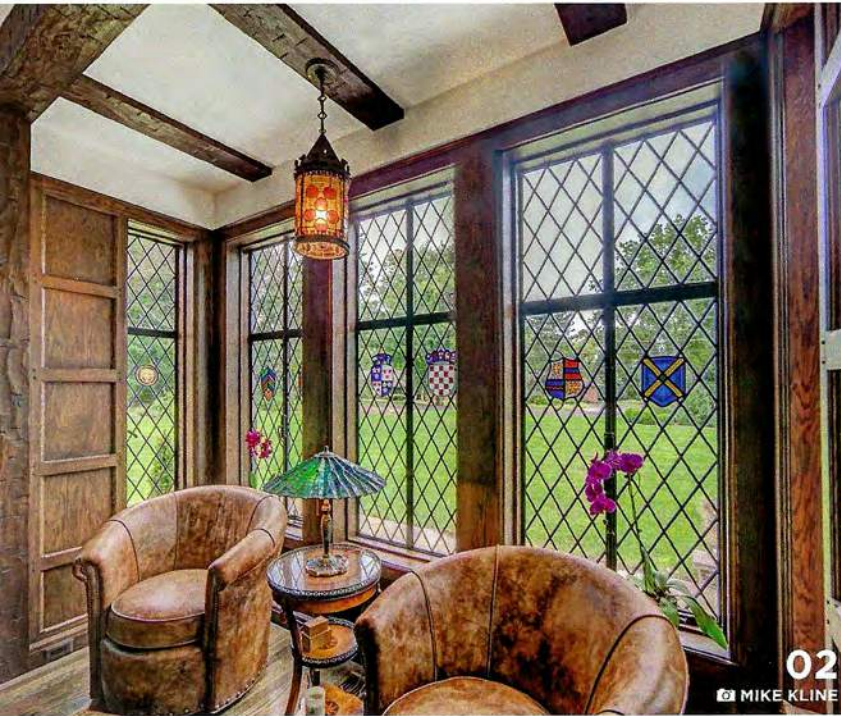

MATEO MORRISON

“

Designer’s Goal

The combination of the soulful, earth-toned sculptures makes way for bold and colorful artwork that provides depth and a playful pop of color. The mix of textures and heights within the vignette creates further interest for the eye, evoking a tasteful sense of drama. By grouping multiple pieces together in this display, the homeowners have an area of their home that shows their discerning taste and personality to guests.

— Carrie Long Interiors

02

MIKE KLINE

03

BETH SINGER

01

Anna Versaci Design

The dining room had to be casual enough for everyday dining, but functional and elegant enough for holiday gatherings. The design challenge was to create some kind of a door that could keep the clutter out but allow the light to filter in. These antique leaded glass doors, far left, were stripped and repainted, contemporary hardware was added, and they were attached to the rail as barn door sliders. In addition to serving their purpose, they give the room authenticity and visual interest.

02 Heller & Associates

03 Carrie Long Interiors

CONTEMPORARY LIVING ROOM/GREAT ROOM

01

BETH SINGER

02

BETH SINGER

“

Judge's Insights

VanBrouck & Associates, with Ellwood Interiors' living room is an amazing combination of texture and pattern that solidifies visual interest, while remaining warm and inviting.

— Judge Kayla Cooper

03

MATEO MORRISON

01

VanBrouck & Associates, with Ellwood Interiors

The living room in this Prairie-style lakehouse has a sense of connectivity with the surrounding landscape. Expansive windows on two sides offer magnificent panoramic views. An infinity-edge pool that appears to cascade into the lake interlinks with the terrace that wraps around two sides of the living room, heightening the seamless flow between interior and exterior spaces. The horizontal veining of the single-slab Eramosa marble, recessed into the wall to create the surround of the fireplace, echoes the lake's ripples.

02 Pamela Singer Interiors

03 Anna Versaci Design